Manufacturing
Why Cyber Insurance?

Do you:
- Manufacture products for large, public organizations?
- Store sensitive supplier data on digital devices or online applications?
- Pay suppliers or accept payment electronically?
- Operate your factory floor with a connected SCADA system?

If you answered "Yes" to any of the above, you could be exposed to cyberattacks. Cyber insurance covers losses, expenses, and provides cyber experts to help you recover from incidents.

Common Cyber Risks for Manufacturers

When contracting with a large organization
- You might be targeted as a means to infiltrate your customer.
- You might lose current and future business because of production delays due to a cyberattack.
- Cyber insurance is a good safetynet to fall in.

Ransomware attacks
- Your revenue depends on your factory floor being operational.
- Business interruptions due to ransomware average 19 days.
- Cyber insurance can cover lost revenue, crisis management, breach coach services, and even negotiate the ransom.

Compromised Payment Information
- Phishing attacks can lead to fraudulent transfers of funds.
- Cyber insurance can cover computer and funds transfer fraud.

Compromised Vendor and Client Data
- Client or supplier data can be compromised by a data breach.
- Notifying compromised individuals or entities is mandatory.
- Cyber insurance will often cover post-breach remediation services and notification expenses.
