Why Cyber Insurance?

Do you:

- Use online services to store financial files and other sensitive data?
- Make or accept payments electronically?
- Maintain a database of assets and supplier contracts on a computer
- Engage in smart agriculture?

If you answered “Yes” to any of the above, you could be exposed to cyberattacks. Cyber insurance covers losses and expenses to recover from an incident including legal and client notification services.

Common Cyber Risks for Agriculture Companies

Business Interruption

- As smart farming is becoming more common, cyber incidents ransomware could result in more severe damages than ever.
- Wired-up off-road equipment and machinery, high-tech food and grain processing, radio frequency ID-tagged livestock or global-positioning system tracking can all be compromised.
- Cyber insurance can cover business interruption costs and the cost of rebuilding systems.

Compromise of Customer and Supply Chain Data

- Cyber incidents can lead to the compromise of customers' or suppliers' data and could damage your reputation.
- Incidents might make your files and data inaccessible.
- Cyber insurance will often cover post-breach remediation services and notification expenses.

Cyber Crime and Funds Transfer Fraud

- All electronic transactions - contracts, invoices and payments - are susceptible to cyber fraud and manipulation.
- Cyber criminals might manipulate your email or phone systems and lead you or your staff to pay fake invoices.
- Cyber insurance with first party liability and cybercrime coverage can cover such incidents.

Other Risks: Ransomware, Social Engineering Attacks and Bricking
